

STATISTICS

College of Natural Science and Mathematics
Department of Mathematics and Statistics
907-474-7332
<http://www.uaf.edu/dms/>

Minor Only

Statistics is a collection of methods and theories for making decisions or estimating unknown quantities from incomplete information. Statistical techniques are useful, for example, in estimating plant, animal and mineral abundances; forecasting social, political and economic trends; planning field plot experiments in agriculture; performing clinical trials in medical research; and maintaining quality control in industry. Employment opportunities are excellent for statisticians in many of these areas of application.

Minor

- Minor, Statistics (<http://catalog.uaf.edu/archives/2018-2019/bachelors/bachelors-degree-programs/statistics/minor>)